

3: Rock You Like a Hurricane

We thought our organization could make some money with a benefit concert. It was all lined up when, in a sudden but inevitable twist of fate, an unseasonably large hurricane destroyed the building we had reserved. Luckily, 14 famous groups heard about our plight, and decided to throw a benefit concert for our benefit concert! Unluckily, our rookie agent was the one who talked to them on the phone, and it looks like he managed to screw things up again. He was supposed to write down the setlist, but while he got the order of the bands right, it appears he mixed up which band would play which song. To make matters worse, he got both the band names and the names of the songs they were planning to play about as wrong as is possible! Maybe you can help us reconstruct the correct setlist...pretty please?
