

Word Squares

Although normally a fanatical horse-racer, today the Duke just looked as if someone had gotten his goat. "Hooligans came through here last night and stole my prize statue. However, they made one fatal mistake; they left a clue behind." After a dramatic pause, the Duke took out a sheet of paper. "Actually, it appears they intended to leave it behind...but it was still a fatal mistake..." The paper had a long list of brief, ambiguous statements and a series of three by three grids. "It's been puzzling me all day," said the Duke. "The only other thing they left behind was graffiti scrawled on my wall stating 'WORD SQUARES RULE', but I haven't the faintest idea what a word square is. It's times like these I fall back on my grandfather's wisdom: Sometimes, orthogonality isn't enough."

Doubled, a deadly fly

Can modify a lock or a guy

Part of many fair trades

You might end up here if you're in hot water

A reverse rep.

$\frac{1}{2}$ pi r squared theta

Exclamation of pleasure

Demon from the Far East

...and sought?

Tie the knot

A long time

Medical term – not desiring CPR

Can modify a wall or cleaning

Her name is...?

Johnson from a kids' song

Last seen in the honey, not the vinegar

Act as a lawyer

Slang for 'your'

Said incompletely

Masticated and ingurgitated

One of CTRL's best buddies

Bond creator and powerful wizard

Not too picky

Science guy
